THE PROGRESS OF CRIME.—The Philadelphia Age, we think with great truth, refers the existing prevalence of crime to the brutality produced by war. In a recent article it

But the unmitigated ruffianism and brutality of crime always follow war. They are the last droopings from that red cloud which overshadows nations and throws its baleful influence upon the people. The thirty years' war in Germany was the parent of after crimes, which, event at this distant time, blanch the cheek in the rearing. The great civil commotions in England were followed by deeds of blood, and at the end of the Nat oleonic strug-gles in Europe, in 1815, all the continental nations were visited by the scourge of lawless and brutal criminals.

The epidemic spread from man to man; from country to country, until human life was sacrificed as if it were valueless. Even in semi-civilized nations, the same results are perceptible afer long wars, which shows that the underlying principle is the same, and that violence begets violence at all times and under all human gov-

The close of our national struggle is marked with the same bloody and ghastly signs.— For the last four years human life was held in little estimation, and the lessons learned then are being repeated now with accumulated horrors and atrocities. But a short time ago an old and peaceful lady in one of the rural wards of this city, was brutally murdered in open day for a few dollars, and yesterday the people were again horrified by the wholesale butchery of a tamily consisting of seven per-

The axe and knife were used, and the victims, embracing the natured man, the blooming woman, and young and innocent children, hurried into a bloody and untimely grave.-Gain is supposed to have been the provoking of this worse than savge outrage. The hope of securing a few dollar was sufficient at this time, when even the 'all encasing air' seems to breed murder and vidence and disregard of human life, to arm the uffian for this unheard of accumulation of crines. The epidemic of ruffianism is spreading. From the foul compost of personal and agregated disregard of right, grim and gastly sapes are emerging to scourge the land, and fright the people.-What remedy shall be applied to stay the ensanguined march of marder in the commu-nity, is the question which this last occurrence will put in the mouths of honest, peaceful citizens. Something mus be done, and that right speedily. The punshment of single individuals must be followed by such teachings from the press, the pulp, and the halls of legislation, as will purity the moral atmosphere, and stay pestilenceof crime. In this way only can the remedy b made commensurate with the ends sought t be attained.

THE NEGRO RIOT IN NRFOLK, VA.-We learn from a private sourcehe following addiditional particulars of this fair, which occurred on Monday last: Manyof the negroes in the procession were armed wh muskets, others with pistols, knives and abs. A band of music was at the head of he column, and banners were displayed, on wich were the following, among other inscripons: 'The Monitor Union Club,' 'The Blot Box Free to All,' &c. A white man, naed Baker, occupied a conspicuous place, ridg in a carriage with two negro women. He an associate of the lawyer Pepper, originatorf the late colonization scheme in Nortolk. here was no disturbance in the streets, but general melee took place in a field outside, were Baker delivered an address to the assenlage. In this riot two white men, a woman al a child are said to have been killed. The groes returned to the city drunk and disorder, and further trouble was anticipated by theirizens. The negroes positively assert that thy will vote at the next election .- Balt. Gazet

MURDER AND LYNCH LAWIN ACCOMAC COUNTY VA. -On Thursday ening of last week Mrs. Drummond, residenof Accomac county, near Pongoteague, wasnost brutally murdered by a negro, who was rently in the army. The Newtown Record sa

He also attempted the murder? a colored woman at the same time. Hisurpose was robbery. He asked Mrs. Drmmd for some money supposed to be in the hous which she refused to give him, whereupon e procured an axe and burst her skull open d dragged her to the stables. He then demaed of the colored woman that she should s that the horse kicked her mistress. She reled to tell the falsehood, and he then struck h with the axe in the same manner, and left bfor dead. The colored woman, though dangertly wounded, revived sufficiently to relate the we facts. and with strict attention being paid her case. may eventually recover.
